

WEEKLY BULLETIN BUREAU OF MARKETING

News to Publish "Wants" and "Offers" for Benefit of Many Farmer Friends

(Address all communications relative to this department to Hon. E. J. Watson, State Agricultural Commissioner, Columbia, S. C.)

If any one had any doubt as to whether or not the South Carolina State Bureau of Marketing was helping the farmer to dispose of his surplus products the following note received from a farmer near Ridge-way in Fairfield county ought to be convincing:

"The Bureau is the finest thing yet. I advertised 125 bushels of Cleveland Big Boll Cotton Seed through it and soon sold all at 90 cents the bushel. I also sold 41 pounds of Angora wool at a seasonable price. I also have sold quite a number of pigs through the Bureau at good prices. Could have sold five times as much Cleveland Cotton Seed at the same price. Long live the Bureau."

And then from way up in Oconee near Westminster a farmer writing to get some registered hogs and other stock says:

"I think that the Bureau is rendering the people of South Carolina a great service, and I for one at least appreciate it." This week also a farmer in Sumter county received an order for two of his country hams at 20 cents the pound from a man way down in Lakeland, Florida, who had seen these hams listed in the bulletin.

It will be noted also that a wholesale produce and commission concern in Charleston has asked to be put in touch with all those in the state desiring to ship poultry and eggs and all other country produce on commission.

In other words there is scarcely a week that there are not entirely new developing lines of activity appearing in connection with the work of the Bureau.

Thus far the state campaign gives promise of affording one issue at least worthy of the consideration of all, and that one is law enforcement. Much is to be said of the need of reverence for law and order as in our opinion too much cannot be said. The need of this very thing has caused us shame and sorrow.

PREPARING CATTLE FOR SHIPMENT

A Subject Given Too Little Attention—Some Important Points Shippers Should Keep in Mind.

Preparation of cattle for shipment is a very important matter. It is just as important to handle cattle so that undue shrinkage may be prevented between the time they leave the feed lot and arrive at the markets, as it is to feed them for the last two or three weeks' gain. Most everyone knows that cattle shrink considerably even when handled in the very best way possible. Many people have learned by costly experience how not to handle them.

Some people make the mistake of giving fattening cattle the finishing touches by feeding extra heavy allowances of cottonseed meal during the last few days, which invariably loosens their bowels to such an extent that they arrive at market so gaunt and so filthy that they can scarcely be recognized by their owners. Excessive feeding of corn, or any other concentrate, will have the same effect, and should be avoided.

A steer should not be full of water when he starts for market, as that is apt to loosen his bowels. If he is being fed silage, or any other succulent or watery feed, that should be cut off during the last two days before loading on the car. In fact, during the last 24 to 48 hours before shipping he should have nothing to eat but an abundance of good, sweet, well cured hay, and that should be timothy, Johnson grass, redtop, or some hay of that nature, as alfalfa, clover, peavine or any other legume hay is apt to have a loosening effect.

He should have very little water during the 24 to 36 hours previous to the time he arrives in the sale pens at market, where he will then drink water freely and be ready for a good fill of hay.

Handled in this manner he will look as full, as clean, and as near the weight he was at loading as it is possible to have him, if proper attention has been given to bedding his car.

If the railroad company does not

IF YOU WOULD LIVE LONG, DON'T OVER-EAT

Over-eating is a detrimental habit and leads to so many disorders that it has been put in the class of "chief offenders" as enemies to good health.

"While eating," says the North Carolina Board of Health, "should be directed by fundamental rules of good table manners and scientific knowledge of food values and the needs of the body, it is too often a riot of untrained and unbridled appetite in which common sense and discretion are not in evidence. Gluttony not only wrecks health and fills untimely graves, but it marks lack of character. There's much truth in the saying that a person's table manners are a good index to his character."

"Over-eating is largely a habit, but a habit with serious results. It brings on constipation, fills the system with poison, and overworks the heart and other bodily functions. It is one of the main causes of the so-called degenerative diseases, as heart trouble, Bright's disease, rheumatism, hardening of the arteries, apoplexy, etc."

When one has over-eaten for many years and he finds it necessary to diet, he over-eats a good thing and eats so little that his general health suffers. Nothing but the study of foods and their use in the body will train the country as a whole away from unwise eating.

bed the car, be sure to bed it deeply. This is not only important in keeping cattle clean, but is necessary to keep them from slipping down and getting injured, or perhaps trampled to death. A car that is not bedded several inches deep will get very slippery when 25 to 30 head of cattle have remained in it 24 hours or more. If bedded with straw or hay, it should be a foot deep or more, where they are to be in the car as long as 24 hours. If sand or sawdust is used for bedding, three to five inches will do.

75 years ago everyone wore homespun—

and, likewise, everyone used hand-mixed paint. To-day, when machine-spun cloth is so much better and cheaper, no one would think of wearing homespun. Many people are still using hand-mixed paint, however, because they do not know that will save them money and labor. Devoe Lead and Zinc Paint is simply made of the same ingredients the old-time painter used: Pure White Lead, Pure White Zinc, and Pure Linseed Oil. The only difference is that Devoe is mixed by machinery, 500 gallons at a time. Therefore, it is always absolutely uniform in strength, color and covering capacity.

We guarantee Devoe Lead and Zinc Paint to be pure. We know it contains no whitening, silica or other worthless materials. Stop in and ask for Color Card.
